Critical Legal Studies: A Bibliography 369

Errata

Page 443, para. 2—delete reference to note 21 after "Lord Campbell's Act" and insert after "pecuniary loss": "In fact the Inheritance (Family Provisions) Act 1975 does, in England, empower a court to depart from its general rules of intestate succession, even in favour of a dependant who is not related by blood to the deceased."

Page 445, para. 3—insert after "tortious liability for lost earning capacity": "though, it may be conceded, subsidiary claims against the deceased's estate might have to be litigated."

Page 445, last line, page 446 first line—the test should read ". . . damages for lost future earning capacity should not survive to the estate. Such a provision, as suggested above, creates an anomalous exception to the principle that the death of a plaintiff should not diminish a wrongdoer's liability."

Page 451, para. 3—the text should read "The action had to be a single action only, brought in the name of the deceased's personal representative, and was liable to reduction for the deceased's contributory negligence."
